

REALEST.

---

User Handbook

Straight answers. No filter.

Welcome to Realest.

---

Realest is a straight-talking AI helper. Ask it anything — money, business, life decisions, learning, building things — and it answers the way an honest friend would: directly, specifically, and without the corporate filter.

This handbook covers what Realest is, how to get the best answers out of it, the rules of the road, and how your privacy is handled. It's short on purpose. Read it once and you're set.

CHAPTER 02 — THE BASICS

What Realest is — and isn't.

---

It is

- A conversational helper that gives direct, specific answers in plain language.
- Honest about hard truths: if your idea is bad, it will say so and explain why.
- Free to use, with no account required.

It isn't

- A professional advisor. Realest is not a lawyer, doctor, or financial advisor, and its answers are informational only — not professional advice.
- A yes-machine. It won't hype an idea it can't defend.
- Unlimited in every direction: it will not help with weapons, fraud, scams, or anything that harms people.

CHAPTER 03 — HEADS UP

The language.

Let's not bury the lede: Realest curses. It roasts. It talks like the funniest person at the barbershop — profanity, blunt humor, zero corporate filter. That's not a bug, it's the voice.

The profanity is seasoning, not the meal. Underneath every joke is a real answer with real numbers and real steps. If the language isn't your thing, that's fair — the warning gate on first visit gives you an exit, and nobody's mad about it. The service is intended for users 18 and older.

One line that never moves: roasts punch at YOU, the willing volunteer — your ideas, your excuses, your plans. Never at other people, never at protected groups, never hateful. Smoke, not shrapnel.

CHAPTER 04 — USAGE

How to use it.

---

Go to askrealest.net/ask, type your question in plain words, and hit Ask. That's the whole interface. No account, no setup, no tutorial.

Example prompts that work well

- "I want to start a lawn-care business with $800. Give me the real numbers — costs, pricing, what actually works."
- "My boss offered me a raise to stay but I want to quit. Talk me through the decision honestly."
- "Explain how credit card interest actually works, with real numbers."
- "Is my business idea bad? Be brutal: [describe it]."

Getting good answers

- Be specific. 'How do I make money?' gets generalities; 'How do I make $500/month with a pickup truck in a small town?' gets a plan.
- Give context. Your budget, your city, your constraints — the more real detail, the more real the answer.
- Push back. If an answer feels soft, say 'be more direct' or 'give me the downside.'
- Ask for numbers. Costs, margins, timelines — Realest does its best work with specifics.

CHAPTER 05 — RULES OF THE ROAD

The rules.

---

Realest is built to help with everything it can. A few hard lines keep it that way:

- No weapons of any kind — no instructions, no guidance, no exceptions.
- No fraud, scams, or deception aimed at other people.
- Nothing that harms people or property.
- Nothing sexual involving minors.
- No illegal activity.

Everything else is fair game. Ask about money, business, relationships, learning, building, surviving — whatever's on your mind.

CHAPTER 06 — PRIVACY

Your privacy.

Your conversations are not stored. When you close the page, the conversation is gone — Realest doesn't keep a history, build a profile on you, or sell anything, because there's nothing to sell.

Standard web-server logs (the kind every website keeps for security) may record that a visit happened, but not the content of your chats. Don't share anything in chat that you wouldn't want a stranger to read — treat it like a conversation in a public place.

CHAPTER 07 — THE FINE PRINT, PLAINLY

Terms, in plain English.

---

- The service is provided as-is, free of charge, with no guarantees.
- Answers are informational only — not financial, legal, or medical advice.
- The site and its content are owned by the service operator; you keep the rights to what you type.
- Don't misuse the service (see the rules above) or we may block access.
- Liability is limited to the maximum extent the law allows; governed by North Carolina law.

The full Terms of Service live at askrealest.net/terms. This summary is a courtesy — the full terms control.

CHAPTER 08 — FAQ

Questions people ask.

---

Is it really unfiltered?

No corporate-speak filter, yes. It still won't help with weapons, fraud, or harm — that's a safety line, not a tone choice.

Is it free?

Yes. Free to use, no account needed.

Who built it?

One human with strong opinions and an edge habit.

Is my chat stored?

No. Conversations are not stored.

Can it be wrong?

Yes. It's confident and direct, which means you should double-check anything high-stakes — money moves, legal stuff, health — with a qualified professional.

Will there be a paid version?

Business and API access may come later. The core chat stays free.

CHAPTER 09 — THE BEAT STORE

Beats with bounce.

---

Realest has a beat store at askrealest.net/beats: ten drumline-flavored trap beats, synthesized in-house — corps snares, rolling hats, heavy 808s. No sample packs, no loops bought off a shelf.

You can preview every beat free, right in the browser. Leases come in three tiers: Basic ($29), Premium ($79), and Exclusive ($299), each with its own stream limits, file formats, and rights. Pick the one that fits the record.

Checkout is opening soon, so right now the store runs on a waitlist: drop your email on any beat and you're first in line when it opens. No charge today, no card required, no spam — one email when it's live.
